Peduncle Top

by Treenway Silks

Peduncle top is from the “stem” that some of the tropical Tasar (tussah) silkworms make first, to attach themselves securely to the tree branch, before making their cocoon. The peduncle (or ‘stem’) is a dark brownish color. These “stems” are separated from the cocoons and processed differently.

India has 10 major varieties of Tasar (tussah) silkworms. The cocoons we have, a few which still have the peduncle attached, are a tropical wild “raily” tasar variety that is found deep in the forest in east-central India.

When the silkworm creates the peduncle “stem” this silk has a short fiber length.

Drop Spindle Starter Kit

by Akerworks

We've created the Akerworks Drop Spindle Starter Kit to offer you all the tools, materials, instruction, and inspiration you'll need to create your first skein of glorious handspun. There's nothing as satisfying as knitting or crocheting with yarn you've spun on a drop spindle. We're so excited you're embarking on that journey, and we look forward to being there right alongside you as you learn.

1-4 Skein Winder

by Babe's Fiber Garden

This skein winder can wind multiple skeins at a time and then hold them all until you are ready to remove them. Simply make sure to have tied the skeins in several places then lift the reel and slip the skeins off and do your final twist.

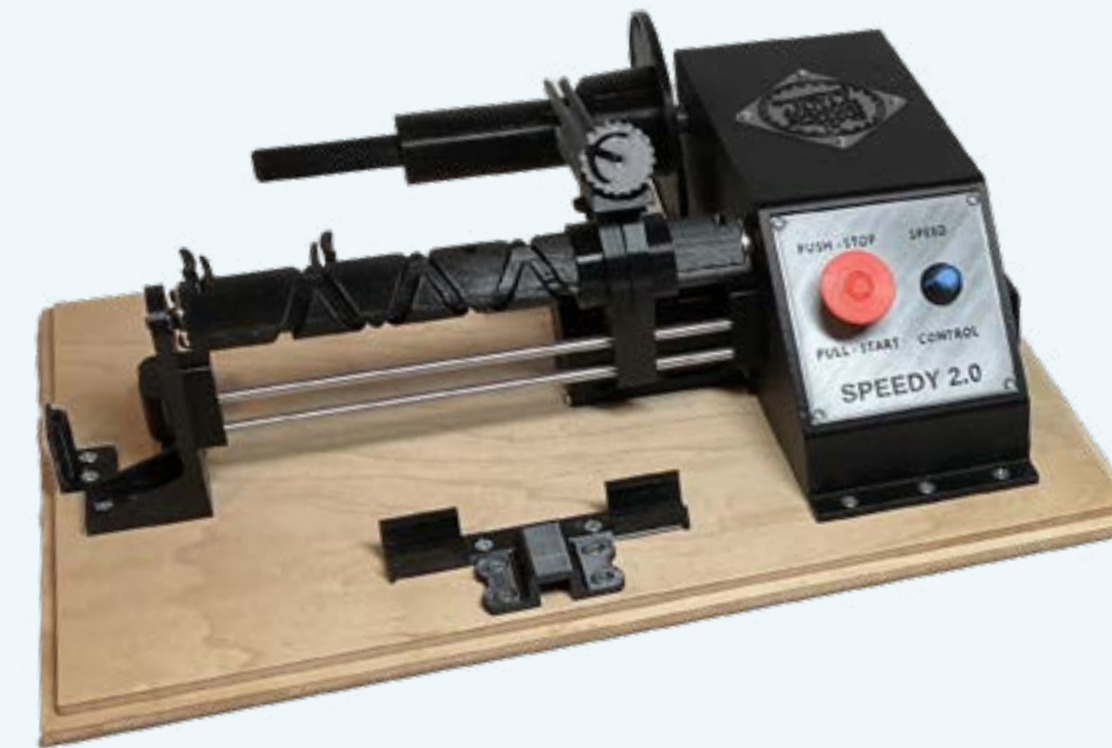

Skein Winders with motors will use the same 60-inch drive bands as our wheels.

Speedy Cone Winder

by Joyce Knits and Sews

The Speedy Cone Winder 2.0™ boasts a larger, more robust motor, and the helical screw in this new design is driven by the motor instead of the yarn driving the pulley. This provides a smoother and quieter operation. The yarn is easily threaded through the yarn traps – all from the top -- meaning that a partially wound cone can be removed from the winder for an emergency wind of something else. All the controls are easily accessible on the front of the winder.
